Decision Of The Supreme Court This Morning Settles Matter As To Who Is Head Of Police Department.

JUDGE GRIMM'S DECISION SUSTAINED

Long Drawn Out Fight Ends In Victory For The Fire And Police Commission And Their Choice Of George M. Appleby As Chief Of Police.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, April 20.—The supreme court this morning affirmed the judgment of the lower court in the case of John Brown against George M. Appleby. As a result Appleby holds his place as chief of police and fire commissioner. The court holds that the city marshal is the chief police officer and under the municipal civil service law must be elected or approved by the board of police and fire commissioners.

The above decision, written by Judge Barnes of the state supreme court, ends the long legal battle as to who is the real head of the police department and also who has the power to name the chief or city marshal of Janesville.

Ever since the council elected John Brown as chief of police, ignoring the action of the fire and police commission's selection of George Appleby as chief of police, it has been a bitter contest. Mr. Brown has filed his report as city marshal and Mr. Appleby has been laid on the table and nothing has had real control of the situation.

The council recognized Brown as head of the department and the mayor and fire and police commission recognized Appleby. For many months neither man drew any salary and finally by stipulation, in December, both men were paid at the rate of $1,000 per month, the remainder of the salary as head of the department being held up pending the decision of the court.

LINE CITY OFFICER BEATEN IN SALOON

Policeman Janvrin Had Face Badly Bruised And Cut In Row In Deloit Saloon.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Deloit, Wis., April 18.—In attempting to arrest a drunk named Lidster, Officer Fred Janvrin was assaulted yesterday by a number of "toughs" in the saloon of "Frank" Roberts on South State street. His face was badly bruised and cut by beer glasses which were hurled at him.

Lidster had been crouching a disturbance on the street and when the officer started after him he was pulled into the saloon by several of the men who were with him. The officer went inside after him and Lidster resisted. Janvrin had a tussle with him in the bar-room but succeeded in pulling him into the back room of the saloon where several of the hangers-on took a hand in the game and came to Lidster's assistance. The officer overpowered Lidster and two or three of his assistants but received the worst of the misap, beer glasses and bottles flung with telling effect in the fight.

The police say that the Roberts saloon is one of the toughest places on State street. This place has been hostile to the officers for some time because it has been closely watched. It is probable that steps will be taken in the near future to withdraw the license of this saloon.

Two of Lidster's assistants, Shawmacker and Munkor, were arrested shortly after the disgraceful occurrence.

Frank Lloyd, a "hobo" by nature, and a well-known sharpener by trade was arrested here yesterday afternoon for stealing a beef roast, a pork roast, a bag of lemons, and a quart of cream from the kitchen. All of the goods were found except the cream which he had drunk. He was brought into court this morning and on plea of guilty was sentenced to thirty days in the county jail.

PROHIBITION FIGHT IS CLOSE IN TEXAS

Bill To Have Entire State Go "Dry" Voted On By Very Close Margin Today.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

San Antonio, Tex., April 20.—State-wide prohibition unless being a reality in Texas by an eyelash, falling of carrying in the present session of the legislature by such a narrow margin as to give the liquor interests a bad scare. It now develops that the prohibition element of Texas, far from feeling the temporary defeat, are carefully mapping out their plans to make Texas a dry state within the next two years.

Prohibition leaders who have visited San Antonio within the past few days express a firm conviction that victory will soon perch triumphantly on their banner, and they make no secret of their plans to force the fight to a decisive conclusion in this state. Chief among the measures which they will seek to have enforced in the meantime is the national law, regarding that trading in liquor is a crime, which is largely responsible for such inequality as exists.

The Rev. G. W. Elchberger, one of the most prominent of the anti-liquor forces, has arrived here from a tour of the state. He says that five counties are already willing and anxious to put the question of wet or dry to their voters in elections which will very likely be held in July or August. Mr. Elchberger will devote two or three months to Texas county. Every ward in the city of San Antonio and every precinct in the county will be thoroughly organized, and prohibition clubs started in all of them.

SEVENTIETH BIRTHDAY OF KING CELEBRATED

Seventieth Anniversary of Birth of King Charles of Romania Enthusiastically Kept Today.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Bucharest, April 20.—Diapatches from Bucharest report that the seventieth birthday of King Charles was enthusiastically celebrated today not only in the Romanian capital, but throughout the country, where the king enjoys unbounded popularity. It caused universal regret that the health of the king would not permit him to bear the strain of attending the public festivities arranged in his honor. Even to receive the members of the diplomatic corps tendering their congratulations and giving audience to the members of the cabinet and the heads of the parliamentary bodies and the civil and military authorities was a severe tax upon the king's feeble strength.

King Charles has probably the most interesting history of all the rulers of Europe. He was born April 20, 1839, the second son of the late Prince Charles of Hohenzollern-Sigmaringen and was lieutenant in the Second Regiment of Prussian Dragoons when, in 1866 he was selected to fill the throne of Roumania which had become vacant by expulsion of Prince Alexander John. From the very beginning his reign was marked by "internal discordance" and parliamentary errors. The persecution of the Jews in Roumania led to indignation protests from various foreign governments and the pro-Russian leaning of Prince Charles and his subjects caused constant irritation to the powers of the Triple Alliance. During the Russo-Turkish war of 1877 Roumania strongly supported Russia and the Roumanian troops, gallantly led by Prince Charles himself, fought gallantly and won the day at Pleven. In return for these valuable services Prince Charles received from Alexander II, the Cross of St. George and a stretch of twenty square miles in the Dobruza, an important province was taken away from Roumania. This led to complete estrangement between Roumania and Russia, which continued until Crown Prince Ferdinand of Roumania married the beautiful Princess Marie of England, eldest daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Cambridge and favorite niece of the late Czar.

Charles was only "Royal Highness" until March 26, 1881, when he was proclaimed king of Roumania by a unanimous vote of the representatives of the nation. The same year, a few days after ascending the throne of Roumania Charles after a romantic courtship married Princess Elizabeth von Wied, who bore him one child, a girl, that died of scarlet fever at the age of seven years. As there was no prospect that the Queen would give another to the country, Charles, at the urgent request of his people asked Prince William of Hohenzollern, his nephew and eldest son of Charles' brother, Leopold, to become crown prince of Roumania. After a few years a divorce was pronounced, however, William declined and made way for his younger brother, Ferdinand, who became Prince Royal of Roumania by a decree of March 18, 1889. Prince Ferdinand who married Princess Marie of Saxo-Coburg, was a consumptive and in case of his death Prince Carol, the oldest of his sons will become heir to the throne of Roumania. Neither Ferdinand nor Princess Marie is popular and it is feared that after the death of King Charles an era of internal storms will dawn for Roumania. Ferdinand is considered a weakling, physically as well as intellectually and even should he live, it is expected that his wife will rule the country as she has always ruled her husband.

RECALLS DAYS OF BYGONE GLORIES

MR. WRIGHT TELLS OF JANESVILLE OF LONG AGO.

THE OLD STAGE COACH

How Janesville Kept Up Its Communication With the Outside World—Other Interesting Items.

In his present article on the Janesville of long ago, Mr. Wright gives his readers a bit of history that is most charming. It deals with matters that have been almost forgotten in this day of steam and electricity and how the early recollections of Janesville were more conspicuous than the old stage coach. Standing alone, it does not seem to be much, but hitch to it four fiery steeds, pawing and snorting, dancing and prancing, with driver, whip and horn on the box, who could be unmoved? None would be more excited than the small boy who would exchange all of his worldly effects if he could be in the driver's place, or even have a seat by him. None the less the timid lady who was about to enter its portals whose suspended partitions and honky-tonk trimmings were reminders of a large trunk in which were packed all sorts of wondrous apparel wrapped around the passengers. One by one the passengers would climb the steps until the seats were full, but if any belated appeared the old law, "always room for one more in a stage coach," would be sprung, and three or four would find room by squeezing in. Stage drivers were a clever set of fellows and as they came were boys, would sympathize with the youngsters and often have them to ride. Such was the height of any boy's ambition—possibly the highest they ever attained. Like all earthly pleasures, soon ended, so with our boy—his ride terminated at the Monterey bridge. Passengers all in, trunks marked and strapped in place on the rear, the disfigured collector of fares appeared and faithfully discharged his duties. There were two, and what they did not know about horses and running stages was not worth knowing. "Old Burroughs" and "Old Monroe," but I will be more respectful and call them Mr. Burroughs and Mr. Monroe. Everything being ready, stage ladder removed, the shout "all aboard" followed by a blast from the horn, a crack of the whip, and away sailed the caravan—one, two and often three stages, occasionally five. Passengers going early in the morning could breakfast at the Ladies' Ordinary at Hotel Afton. On the return the experience would differ in that blessing of horses would be common to all. The stages were quite uncomfortable—by ranking passengers to their homes when within the limits. The stage line was called the "Frank and Walker." Records say that Janesville being centrally located, it became the center of stage lines for the southern part of the state. As near as I can learn a regular line ran from Janesville to Milwaukee from 1840 to 1853, when in January the new Milwaukee & St. Paul road was finished and cars were running. The stage driver was an important man; to him was entrusted large amounts to pay for goods there being a bank from which they could obtain drafts.

Comparison with the Pullman car of the present day, the stage was not in it. Still, sleep was not impossible. The motion was pleasant—a gentle rocking something like a cradle, only it was lengthwise instead of sideways which was occasioned by the springs which were long strips of leather on which the body was suspended to the ends. The driver has traveled light and day in them and could sleep quite well. In pleasant weather the ride was quite endurable but when there were heavy rains the speed was reduced to a walking pace and all schedule time was at an end.

ACCORDING TO A STATEMENT ATTRIBUTED TO ELLSWORTH.

MRS. KENNEDY ON STAND

Edwin C. Mason of Madison, a Handwriting Expert, and Jeweler Olin Also Testified.

JURY TRYING ELLSWORTH CASE.

Seven of the twelve jurors trying the case of the State vs. Elmer Ellsworth are from Beloit. The remainder are from the individuals sworn in at four o'clock yesterday afternoon. Various sections of the county are represented as follows:

Beloit—F. B. Foster, George Cox, J. Dearhammer, William Merrill, Frank Blazer, E. J. Barnum, and Ziba Naugle.

Janesville—J. H. McVicar, L. A. Babcock, and J. P. Wright.

Evansville—A. F. Fellows.

Spring Valley—Elmer Holden.

ATTORNEYS.

In the prosecution District Attorney J. L. Fisher is assisted by C. A. Oestreich. The defense is being conducted by Thomas S. Nolan and Charles W. Reeder.

"Hooray fall not at your peril" is the solemn warning which greets the jury at the conclusion of the opening statement. The jury, composed of twelve men, failed to put in an appearance when court was called at two o'clock yesterday afternoon. One was a bank clerk of this city, who, in confidence to his home with illness; another was F. H. Koehn, who is exempt from service, having been a member of the state militia; and the third was George B. Howard of Magnolia, who arrived late by reason of a mix-up in the train schedules. The three mentioned were all forgiven. The selection of a jury to serve in the Ellsworth case was accomplished in short order. A question as to whether or not the prospective jurors were prejudiced against nurserymen and horticultural agents. One of the candidates answered that he had had frequent dealings with them but never any trouble—"simply told them to get out and that was all there was to it." Another was rather fond of nurserymen, being, as he said, "in the fruit-growing business, himself. It was the consensus of opinion on both sides that the case at hand would not be finished earlier than Wednesday noon.

Prosecution Outlined Case.

Attorney O. Oestreich made the opening statement for the prosecution. The defendant, Elmer Ellsworth, he said, had lived in Janesville about two years and the complaining witness, Mrs. Kate E. Kennedy, had resided here eight or ten years and now makes her home on a 30-acre farm south of the Illinois Institute. Her former abode was in Dakota. Ellsworth, since he came to Janesville, had been engaged in the nursery business. The testimony would show that the defendant since he came to Janesville but not, therefore, before, he was known as George B. Guthrie, sometimes with the middle initial "E." and, at various other times and places under several different aliases. Some of these were W. W. Woods, Logan Taylor, and A. Certain Red Jewel.

George Taylor.

The information in the case charged that on the 20th day of March, 1908, he secured $380 from the complaining witness under false pretenses. The supposed false pretenses consisted in the alleged pledging of a certain red stone or piece of glass paste which Ellsworth is alleged to have told Mrs. Kennedy was a pigeon blood ruby left to him by his parents as an heirloom and worth $1,000 or more.

How Acquaintance Began.

Mrs. Kennedy became acquainted with Ellsworth on or about July 3, 1907, at which time he visited her farm in company with another man for the purpose of selling nursery stock. In a very few days he succeeded in closing a contract for the sale of a large amount of this commodity. She was to pay him $1,250 in cash and he was to take a certain portion of the prospective fruit for the balance.

At this juncture Attorney Nolan interposed an objection, stating that he failed to see how a contract for nursery stock was in any way material to the case. Attorney Oestreich insisted that the transactions would be shown to be pertinent and was permitted to proceed.

The contract for nursery stock was followed by a series of other business transactions, one of which was the conclusion of an agreement whereby Ellsworth was to rent part of the farm for a canning factory, lodging houses for the workers, and so forth.

Cash Advances.

Very shortly thereafter Ellsworth began to obtain sums of money from her under various pretexts. The first advance of $40 was made early in July. This was to apply on the purchase price of the nursery stock. Soon afterward, there was another advance of $25. In August he got about $50 and he secured another $50 on the succeeding Thanksgiving Day. Some of the moneys were loans and others were turned over to apply on the purchase price of nursery stock. On the first of January he borrowed $100 and prior to that, on the 23rd of October, when both parties and Mrs. Poonchelle were in Milwaukee, Ellsworth told Mrs. Kennedy that he had forgotten his pocketbook and wanted to make some purchases and likewise secured $100. On January 23 he was in Madison. Mrs. Kennedy showed her a contract for $1,000 worth of stock which he claimed to have sold the Madison Park and Pleasure Drive association and declared that it would be necessary for him to get $250 to forward to his firm in order to secure the stock.

Attorney Nolan interposed another objection but it was overruled.

Attorney Oestreich resumed: "Upon that representation Mrs. Kennedy gave him the $250, having made over to him at the State Bank at Madison a draft which was subsequently cashed by Ellsworth at the Mercantile & Mechanical Bank in this city. This took place on either January 23 or 24, 1908. After he had gotten the $250 another month elapsed before he obtained other sums of money from her.

Trouble About Deliveries.

Prior to February, a year ago, Ellsworth told Mrs. Kennedy that for some reason or other the nursery stock she had contracted for had not come. According to his representations they had been shipped from Sheboygan, Wis., and as an explanation of their failure to arrive he told her that they had been overhauled on the road, had been overhauled, and that the whole business was in litigation; $250 would be necessary to pay his expenses thither and get the claim satisfied. So, on February 20, he secured the money which would enable him to go to Sheboygan and get the overhauled stock. After that he secured no other sums until the $380 loan mentioned in the complaint was made.

Boxing of the Gem.

Counsel further alleged that during the time Mr. Ellsworth and Mrs. Kennedy had been acquainted he had worn in his pocket in heavy gold representing to be a ruby worth $1,000; that about the middle of March he told her that owing to the stringency in the money market it might be necessary for him to raise some funds on this ruby, stating at the same time how hard it would be for him to do such a thing and asking whether or not she would be willing to advance $380 on the ruby that she said the man was worth $1,000 or more so would let him have the money; that on March 30 he went to her farm, taking with him a small box containing an envelope of some sort on which certain initials were written. The balance of the alleged transaction was outlined by Attorney Oestreich as follows: "He had the ruby in his pocket and after taking his horse, went into the house where he negotiated the loan of $380, representing either that the gem was worth $1,000 or three or four times the sum he was going to ask. After she had told him she would give him the money, he took the pin out of his belt, looked it in the box, himself rubbing the box and turned over to her the small chest and its contents as a pledge. According to the agreement, Mrs. Kennedy deposited the box in the Rock county bank. Subsequently the supposed valuable ruby turned out to be but an ordinary piece of glass with gold mounting such as might be purchased of any jeweler for $5 or $6."

Mrs. Kennedy Became Uneasy.

Toward the end of the year Mrs. Kennedy became anxious about all the sums she had loaned and went to the law firm of J. Olin, Mount, Smith & Avery for advice regarding the security for the said loans. Mr. Mount wrote to Ellsworth to visit the office at a certain time so as to adjust certain difficulties. When he appeared to keep the appointment and discovered that Mrs. Kennedy was there he backed out, declaring: "I've nothing to say." Mr. Mount's rejoinder was: "You'd better come in, or something is going to drop." They were in the hallway at the time and Ellsworth said that he would talk to him. Mr. Mount then stated that Mrs. Kennedy claimed that Ellsworth was indebted to her for nearly $2,500 and that something must be done. Ellsworth wanted to know what she had to show for it. Mr. Mount said that the indebtedness could be proven, he thought. Whereat Ellsworth said: "That isn't true—she owes me money." Mr. Mount then asked the defendant if he would go with them and open the box containing the pigeon-blood ruby and Ellsworth replied that he didn't know anything about any ruby; that his jewel of that description was at home. Defendant was further represented by counsel as declaring that he didn't think Mrs. Kennedy would want the notoriety he'd give her if she prosecuted, and subsequently that he would confer with his attorneys and have them talk with Mr. Mount.

"Just a Collection Scheme."

"It must appear to you gentlemen," said Attorney T. S. Nolan, in opening for the defense, "that all this is nothing more nor less than a collection scheme on the part of Mrs. Kennedy."

Attorney Oestreich arose and offered an objection but it was not sustained.

"The counsel for the prosecution has told you that Mr. Ellsworth got $2,500 or more from Mrs. Kennedy and I claimed that this was not material. But he finally wound up by saying that the only issue was whether or not Mr. Ellsworth got the $380. That is the only issue and the other things have no bearing whatever on the case.

Every Contract Fulfilled.

"The testimony will show that every contract he made with Mrs. Kennedy was carried out with the exception of a provision for a few grapevines that were to be furnished.

There may be some extravagance in the talk one often hears concerning the qualities claimed for certain breakfast foods.

this summer. I want to say, and it will be admitted by the complaining witness, that she is a money-lover. The attorney then applied another term to the complaining witness and resumed: "She became infatuated with Ellsworth. She wanted him to go out and live at her home. She followed him to Milwaukee, Madison, and Beloit, registering at the same hotels in one or two places and putting notes under his door."

"Actuated by Jealousy."

"The whole secret of this case is apparent. From the presentation made by the counsel for the state it is evident that there is nothing to it. He goes on to show how Ellsworth got $2,500 without tracing a pin. Mrs. Kennedy had never asked him for security before, but on this occasion he is represented as voluntarily offering her a $1,000 ruby. We claim that the woman was actuated by jealousy—the same as the King of Egypt's wife when she had Joseph thrown into prison. The defendant got to going with a young girl and Mrs. Kennedy told him she'd break it up. 'If you marry that thing I'll drive you out of the city,' she said. She came near doing it, but her game and her going to stay his ground."

Witnesses on the Stand.

Chief of Police George Appleby and Attorney M. O. Mount were the first witnesses called to the stand this morning. They identified the steel box and the ruby pin and envelope bearing the initials "E. E. E. E." which constituted its contents. Miss Agnes Grant identified another envelope on which Mrs. Ellsworth had written these initials in municipal court. Mrs. Kate Kennedy took the stand and Attorney Nolan requested that her veil be lifted in order that her identity be established. She complied and identified a series of postals and letters written by Ellsworth and the draft drawn in his favor at her instance by the State Bank at Madison.

Handwriting Testimony.

Attorney M. O. Mount testified that he had made some study of handwriting and that in his judgment the letters on the envelope found in the steel box were traced by the same hand that wrote the various letters and postals. Attorney Nolan requested him to trace those letters on a piece of paper and entered the same as one of the defense's exhibits. Witnesses would not say that Ellsworth put the envelope in the box; he could only swear that it was in the box when opened. There was nothing in the envelope and what it was put there for he could not say.

Sapphire Dust and Glass.

George Olin stated that he had been a jeweler fifteen years and worked four years in a factory where precious stones were sorted, graded, and mounted. The so-called ruby brought to him in the steel box by Attorney Mount, Chief Appleby, and District Attorney Fisher, he said, was an imitation made of glass and sapphire dust melted together and worth about $7. It was not a real ruby, which he said is a very hard stone of red ruby. Attorney Nolan handed him a pin somewhat similar to the one found in the box and he declared that the jewel was of about the same weight and made of the same composition. Only in the high-prong "Tiffany" mounting did it differ from the other pin which was mounted "low Tiffany."

Chirography Expert.

Edwin C. Mason of Madison testified that he was an accountant and former bank cashier, 61 years of age, and that he had been a student of handwriting for 20 years and had given expert testimony in a number of court cases. He gave it as his judgment that the letters "E" on the envelope found in the box were written by the same hand that penned the various letters signed "Elmer Ellsworth," having his deduction on the close similarity which he detected in the fine feathered strokes of the first letter; the proportion of the upper portion of the letter to the lower and the angle at which the small loop rested on the large loop; and certain alleged parallel departures in the second and third repetitions of the letters. No such resemblances, he pointed out, were observable in a comparison with Attorney Mount's exhibit of handwriting. Attorney Nolan was not able to secure from him an admission that the prosecution had told him what was wanted before he examined the handwriting. He would not declare that he could distinguish for certain between a man and woman's handwriting.

Mrs. Kennedy on Stand.

Mrs. Kennedy then went on the stand again and testified to all her business transactions with Ellsworth during the time July 3, 1907, when she met him, to the time he left the farm and introduced him as a personal friend and reliable nurseryman whom he had known for years. Ellsworth was looking for a place to locate a nursery, she said, and Mr. Kommerer had told him that the Kennedy farm would be an ideal spot. By the terms of the first contract drawn up on July 3, 1907, a large quantity of fruit trees and bushes were to be delivered in the fall of 1907 and Mrs. Kennedy was to pay $1,250 in cash on delivery and $1,250 more was to be taken out of profits on the fruit. Another contract was subsequently drawn up whereby Ellsworth was to build a canning factory but on the 24th of December, while she was away, he came out to the farm and in the presence of her husband burned up both copies of the agreement.

Mr. Fethers Wanted Ruby.

The various money advances which he secured were in detail and Mrs. Kennedy testified that Ellsworth gave her to understand that he would have considerable property coming to him from a grandmother in Springfield, Ill. The failure of her consignment of nursery stock in the fall and Ellsworth's representations that it had been abstracted and damaged and securing of $280 from her to go to Sheboygan, Wis., and take steps to collect from the railroad company was narrated. When she came to the jewel transaction, witness declared that a week or two before the alleged loan was negotiated Ellsworth broached the subject and mentioned among other things that Mr. Fethers had accented him on the street and had wanted to know what he would take for the jewel, but that he (Ellsworth) had refused to set any price. Mr. Fethers wanted to have it set in a ring.

Many Gifts on Exhibit.

The prosecution has exhausted the alphabet and commenced over again in labeling its exhibits. Gifts from Ellsworth to Mrs. Kennedy which were entered this afternoon included a bottle of cologne, a pair of hickory combs, a poem, picture postals, a fifty-cent ivory-plated pin, a little gold ring, handkerchiefs, a book, and a shawl.

"Rose From the Dead"

Attorney Nolan conducted a rapid cross-examination of the witness. In response to his early inquiries Mrs. Kennedy said that she was 49 years of age; that she lived in Winthrop, South Dakota, 9 years; that her maiden name was Stringer; that the name of her first husband was Samuels; that he left her in 1875 three years after they were married and has subsequently been reported dead in California; that in 1898, twenty years after the supposed death of Smith and after her father had died and left her considerable property, he suddenly came to life again; that she had been married to him, on Jan. 8, 1881, been married to Wm. Kennedy at Oregan, Oregon; that after she discovered her first husband was living she went to Aberdeen, S. D., and obtained a divorce; and that she was remarried to Mr. Kennedy at Milwaukee, S. D., June 5, 1900. Witness said she owned stock in mines at Tombah, Goldfield, Benson, Arizona, and Death Valley, and in the Home National bank at Elgin, Ill.; and that her income is about $2,000 a year.

Stock Gave Satisfaction.

Attorney Nolan read a letter purporting to be written by Mrs. Kennedy to Ellsworth on August 25, 1908, wherein she acknowledged that grapevines and berries from the Sheboygan nursery which Ellsworth had placed on her farm, had given perfect satisfaction. She acknowledged that the letter was from her hand.

Witnesses From Quincy, Ill.

Three witnesses from Quincy, Ill., who were acquainted with Mr. Ellsworth before he came to Janesville, arrived this noon. They are: Dr. H. M. Harrison, Charles E. Clarke, and J. M. Phelps.

RAPID HEDGE-TRIMMER

Cearing Operates Shears With the Speed of a Machine.

Among the numerous time and labor saving devices for gardeners use the rapid hedge-trimmer, invented by a New York man, is one of the most interesting. With it a hedge that formerly required five hours to trim can be clipped in one hour, or one man can do the work of five. This apparatus consists of a long rod with a double piece of one end and a pair of shears at the other. Along this rod is a drive wheel connected with a rotary pinion, which operates the crank controlling the shears. The device is held against the shoulder by means of a handle in the middle. Then the drive wheel is turned, and by means of the multiple gearing it opens and closes the shears five times with each revolution, thus making the apparatus a saver of time in either time or labor. All the operator has to do is to keep turning the wheel and moving the shears along the hedge where it needs clipping.

SCIENCE NOTES

At Bayonne, N. J., there is what is said to be the greatest pile of steel shrapnel which has ever been gotten together in this country. The pile weighs about 600,000 pounds and is estimated to be worth $2,500,000. The stock of metal is so few long, 25 feet high and 25 feet wide. It was manufactured at Philadelphia, Pa., and is designed for the construction of the Manhattan bridge across the East River at New York. It required 10,000 flat cars to transport it to Bayonne, where it was run over the spur of the New Jersey Central Railroad to the yards. The steel has all been polished and treated with a thick coating of lead and oil to prevent its being injured by the elements. Some of it has been exposed to the weather for a year and shows no bad effects. Already the lower pieces, weighing 60 tons, each, have been taken away for erection, and it is said that the pile will have entirely disappeared in the course of two months.

The patent rights covering the manufacture of aluminum have expired and now the industry is an open one to anyone who wants to get into it. At the present time the output of the Aluminum Company of America is entirely sufficient to take care of the demand, and having the electric power and ample supplies of the raw material it can considerably increase its production should it be demanded.

The foundations are being laid for the deepest canal lock in the world in the line of the New York barge canal at the lower end of Moses Island, near Little Falls. This lock will drop boats 42 feet from the large canal into the Mohawk River. The foundation for the lock is in the present bed of the Erie Canal, where it will have to be excavated about 20 feet until rock is reached. Around the lock proper a temporary lock will be erected so that navigation will not be interfered with the opening of the lock. It is one of the most difficult engineering feats along the entire length of the canal. More than 500 men are engaged on the work night and day and the effort is being made to finish the lock foundation before the water is let into the Erie Canal in the spring.

There are now 25,000 reindeer in Alaska which are being herded and so successfully has this effort to make use of the reindeer been, that the subject of utilizing the caribou of Canada in the same way, has been taken up by the Canadian officials. The animals are much alike in their characteristics and it is claimed that the caribou now ranging over the Canadian territory could be easily domesticated and made a valuable asset set in the development of the country. It will be necessary to transport a vast number of experiments in the direction of the domestication of the animal, for no practical steps in this direction have been taken at this time, but those who are urging the innovation say there are no difficulties in the way and for a few years such an effort could be made as valuable in Canada as the reindeer have been found in the United States.

MR. ALBERT DIETBERG CON-FESSES TO DEFALCATION.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—A letter has just been received from Albert Dietberg, the defuncting head bookkeeper in the department of the city treasury, confessing his guilt to his wife, "My heart is breaking," is one of the sentences in his pathetic note which turns so much to the wife. She would not believe even the evidence of a special accountant until she had her husband's own word for it. Now she knows the truth and her life's hopes are blasted.

For eighteen years the Dietbergs have lived modestly, during the last decade Mr. Dietberg has been one of the most competent and trusted clerks in the city hall. He worked his way up slowly until last fall when he was given full charge of the books in the treasury department and handled the cash. Such complete confidence was placed in him that an audit of his books has been made in some years. For this reason he has been able for a long time—just how long is not yet known—to take out from the cash small amounts and change the books to correspond, or in some places to keep an entire payment of taxes and not enter the item on the books. His system was so crude that an auditor would easily have discovered the discrepancies.

The accumulated troubles therefore came to a head recently when an audit of the books was ordered. He saw that his game was at an end and so ran away leaving his family to face the greatest calamity of their lives alone.

Mrs. Dietberg is loyal to her husband though heart-broken over the trouble. "Why I would gladly have taken in washing to help Albert make up his shortage, if I had only known," she said today to a reporter. "Old time is awful," she continued as tears forced their way down her brave, blanched face.

It cannot be found that Mr. Dietberg was given to any vice or extravagance, but his needs were greater than his income and in simply took the city's money for his own use.

There are no apparent assets and the amount of defalcation is now above $1,200 and may reach $1,000 to $5,000 before the audit is completed. Bonds protect the city, but nothing protects the loving, trusting wife whom Mr. Dietberg swore to protect and she can never again know the pleasure of life, for her life is no more when it was blasted when the one man in the world she trusted proved false to the world and to her.

PARTY PLEDGES

The present congress, now in extra session, is called for a definite purpose, and that is to revise the tariff downwards. This question was an issue in the last campaign, and the platform of the republican party commits its representatives to the extent of instructing them. It will be suicidal in the extreme to disregard these instructions or ignore them.
Members of congress are neither more nor less than public servants and they can not afford to ignore public sentiment. The Dingley schedule which has been in force for the past decade has accomplished its mission, under its provision industries have been fostered and developed through an era of the greatest prosperity which the nation has ever known.
But as time has advanced conditions have changed and individual of fort has been so largely lost in concentration that today all of the great industries are more or less monopolized, and the cost of production reduced to the minimum.
The infant industry is now full-fledged and able to stand alone and necessarily no longer exists for a prohibitive tariff on many lines of goods.
The people paid the freight inconspicuously during this season of development, and not until American manufacturers, stimulated by avarice and greed, combined to take advantage of monopolies created, was there any discontent.
But there is a limit to endurance, and today all over the land the over-protected American industry is denounced as an unholy thing. The tariff should be raised in accordance with party pledges, and that without delay.
J. J. Hill, the railroad king of the northwest, said the other day in Washington:
"The people want the tariff revised downward. That means a reduction of rates. The people have not forgotten the promises made in the last campaign, and it is incumbent upon the party in power to make good. Party lines in the United States have never been so nearly obliterated as at present. It therefore behooves the republican majority in congress to make its deeds square with the words uttered by representatives of the party on the stump last fall."
Mr. Hill refused to make any comment on the Payne bill or the measure reported by the senate committee on finance. "I want to see the tariff question settled as soon as possible," he continued. "I am interested in the return of prosperity. We have had two lean years. Normal conditions of prosperity will be restored, I believe, as soon as the new tariff law is laid on the statute."
Mr. Hill is a democrat, but his advice is good and worth heeding.

WALL STREET

Just off of Broadway, down near the Battery, is a narrow, crooked street which terminates at the water front not 80 rods away. From 10 o'clock in the morning until 3 in the afternoon this little street is thronged with a class of men which represent great wealth, as well as great business enterprises, for this is Wall street, the world's money center, where is located the board of trade where men pay $80,000 for a membership, and the stock exchange, where many millions of dollars change hands every day.
This is the street where fortunes are made and lost in a day, the street which Governor Hughes is now investigating by special committee to discover if possible some of the frauds for which the place is noted.
The Wall Street Journal, the best financial paper published in this country, is thoroughly familiar with this famous thoroughfare, and while free to expose crookedness and fraud, is just as free to defend legitimate business.
The street has long been used as a scapegoat for defaulters and dishonest employees, who when hauled in court invariably charge Wall street with their undoing. This accusation is frequently unfair as will be seen by the following incident related by the Journal:
"In one recent case the cashier of a private bank embezzled some $100,000. He also ascribed his losses to 'Wall street.' He expected sympathy and forgiveness but the banker had heard that story before. On a salary of $2,000 a year, amply sufficient for the quality of his work and the real responsibility involved, the man was maintaining two establishments. One was the legitimate home of his wife and two children in Brooklyn, and the other was an apartment with a lady companion who could properly appreciate automobile riding, late suppers and jewelry.
"The peculations in this case extended over about two years and it is easy to see how the money was spent. The wife and family in Brooklyn were quite ignorant of the facts of the case. The pool room got some of the money and the hut on 116th street easily swallowed the remainder. Every reader of the newspapers had, however, been informed that one more soul had been dragged to destruction by the national scapegoat.
"When the crooked bankrupt had perfected his arrangements for an assignment, he sends some confidential friend to the lenders in non-current securities in Wall street, where for a hundred dollars he is able to purchase an imposing block of certificates in important companies, with an enormous face value but no market price or market value except for the fraudulent bankrupt's purposes. When the bankruptcy has been achieved, the safe is opened. This rubbish is disclosed and the bankrupt indicates that he has made his losses 'speculating in Wall street.' There are the certificates to show for it. It apparently never occurs to a district attorney to ask for further particulars. The trick has been done again and again but no grand jury has thought fit to inquire when and where such securities were bought. 'Wall street' is an all-sufficient excuse. Nobody thinks of slow horses and fast women, wine and cards. Wall street should willingly provide all the expenses of prosecution in such cases for, as in the case of the bucket shops in other parts of the country, it reaps absolutely none of the profit and shoulders all the blame."
Wall street is just as necessary to the welfare of the nation, as the great wheat fields of the west or the great industries of New England. It is the financial center where enterprises of magnitude are financed, and where the wheels of commerce are kept in motion.
Patten, the man who is just now in the limelight on the wheat deal, expresses surprise that millers should advance the price of flour on a speculative wheat corner, as he claims that millers have wheat enough to run them until the new crop is marketed. Wheat is the raw material and when it fluctuates in price, from any cause, the finished product goes with it. This is one of the simple laws of trade. It would serve Mr. Patten right if the miller should unload their surplus and break his corner.
Bryan's Commoner was established as the mouthpiece of Bryanism, which is all that is left of organized democracy. It covered the field and had a mission, but a careful perusal of "La Follette" from any standpoint, prompts the question, "What earthly use has the publication for existence?" The American people have passed through an era of muck-raking and have had their fill.
The business of the country is slowly assuming normal conditions, but the discovery is made that more than the unsettled tariff conditions is responsible for tardy improvement. Braute legislation, which in many states has amounted to confiscation of property by crippling business, is accountable for demoralized conditions, and not until an era of sanity is fully established will confidence be restored.
The advocates of spring-shooting should be satisfied if they succeed in bagging a covey of game-wardens. Fifty thousand dollars is worth saving to the taxpayers, and there is a chance to save that amount without injury to any game except the game of politics, and the primary law is abundantly able to take care of that.
The Laurentide Paper mill of Grand Marais, Ontario, is the largest paper mill in Canada, having a capacity of 200 tons per day. For the past year this mill has been competing with the American market in spite of the $6 per ton duty. When the tariff is reduced to $2 per ton the entire output will come across the line, at a good profit, and American mills will feel the competition, but publishers will be the winners.
Game was so plenty in Babcock's county, two years ago, that 40 game-wardens found it necessary to be on the ground to protect the covey. That's going some for a reform administration.
When the back doors are closed on Sunday and screens removed from the front, as required by law, the saloon men will find it easy to observe the Sunday laws.

The effort to run water uphill has been abandoned, in the third ward, and sensible old-fashioned gutters are being put in at the crossings.
The closing act of the old council is to be commended, and respect for law can only be maintained by enforcement.

Heart-to-Heart Talks.
By EDWIN A. NYE.
(Copyright, 1903, by American Press Association.)

SHORT AND SWEET.

President Taft made a big hit when he put his tariff message into 300 words.
The article you are now reading is composed of 500 words, so you can readily understand the brevity of the Taft document.
The newspapers have come to dread the appearance of the average message that fills so much space, to the exclusion of the news.
Besides—
It is an open question whether one person in a thousand really reads the voluminous executive deliverances.
Ex-President Roosevelt's favorite picture—the one over the mantel in the executive's private office—was the one in which the old farmer is shown as sitting up after the family has gone to bed, turning the midnight oil and poring over each sentence of the president's message.
The picture is rather fanciful.
Nowadays the farmer is about as busy as the business man. He is on a rural route, gets his daily paper and skins over the headlines after taking a look at the markets just as the man in town does.
But it is safe to say the farmer and everybody else read every word of the tariff message.
The art of condensation is a rare accomplishment.
If brevity is the soul of wit, it is also the soul of eloquence.
Study the masterpieces of modern eloquence. Note the short, incisive sentences and the epigrams that come like lightning from the orator's brain.
Few speakers understand this art of condensation. They use words, words, words, and they miss over an idea until they tire their audiences. The same is true of many writers.
The story of creation in Genesis is shorter than many editorials.
The Lord's Prayer is put into sixty words.
Lincoln's immortal address at Gettysburg is shorter than many newspaper paragraphs.
"The most thrilling utterance of one human to another requires but three short words—
"I love you!"
The most eloquent marriage ritual is the briefest, as is the most impressive burial service.
The language of sincerity, the language of the heart, is brief speech.
When you have something worth while to say, make it short and sweet.

MODERN DENTISTRY

It took the twentieth century to give us the air ships. It took men who were willing to spend some money and risk in the perfecting of the flying machine.

And the same is true in Dentistry. If all dentists were to follow the same ideas of our grandfathers there would be no advancement.

I am using in my dental office all 20th century equipment which permits of better and faster work and I do all work without pain.

And prices, too, are different from elsewhere. I'm in a position to save you one-third to one-half on the bill.

Editor Gazette:

Although the mining interests of all Nevada are now at a standstill the city of Reno has been jumping into the air and is today pouring from the Atlantic to the Pacific as "The Divorce Mecca of America." From all sections of the East society women of wealth and influence who are seeking freedom from galling matrimonial bonds, are flocking into Reno. The inhabitants of this live western city do not know what to make of it. Rooms in private dwellings are in demand at high rentals while in all the leading hotels the finest of suites are taken for the entire summer. As the result of the lax Nevada divorce laws the divorcees of Reno are just now reaping a golden harvest. One young lawyer informed me last week that he had twenty-six cases to bring before the court in the next month and that if he did not average $300, a case he would go and jump in the river. He then got real confidential and said:

"I received a letter from a dame in Pittsburgh this morning asking me if the divorce situation in Reno was really as easy as the New York papers had pictured it to be. If so she would come out at once. She further stated that her husband did not intend to fight it. She also took the pains to ask if it would not be all O. K. if she would stick around Reno about a week and then return to Pittsburgh before her case was called. She would again put in an appearance in Reno. From what I can learn she is worth all kinds of money and that means a good fat bank roll for your Uncle John."

For years the city of Sioux Falls, South Dakota was the divorce mecca of this country but since the state legislature there took a hand in the affair, passing more stringent laws, the intimated couples by the score have moved on to Reno. The Nevada laws are easy and then some. About all the applicant needs here is a fair supply of nerve and she will pull through without even being noticed. The so-called "smoke act" in New York City is already well represented in the divorce colony here. The finest of suites in the small Riverside hotel here have been engaged for weeks and the prices that the landlord gets from these New Yorkers would stagger even a Janesville banker. Several wealthy New York women have brought along their own servants and one woman had the nerve to bring out her own horses and colored coachman. The extreme style that these women display has been the talk of the town and that is "going out of the town" before the eyes of the local "hicks." As a rule these women are a money-spending class well supplied with the necessary cash and the result is that the millinery and dry goods stores are enjoying a rush of business. The papers of the city have taken sides on the situation and while one claims that the divorce business is a good thing for the place the other paper terms it a disgrace to the good name of Nevada. But the average man of business wears a smile and says nothing.

Wheeler Agates. A former Janesville boy who has made a fortune in the mining business here in Nevada, arrived in Reno this week and has been in consultation with a number of bankers and other men of wealth here relative to pulling off a million dollar oil deal down in Mexico. He arrived direct from the City of Mexico. For one hour he was in our office. He talked about deals involving millions and said as a side issue his company was about to take over several gold producing claims in the new gold region near the city of Phoenix, Arizona. "To hear him tell it he also expected to double his money on several hundred acres of pine land in British Columbia. After I had finally recovered from the shock I asked Wheeler if he had quit dabbling in Nevada mining stocks. He said: "That reminds me; come on over to the Nat. C. Goodwin brokerage office until I buy some stock that looks good to me." We went over and I had the pleasure of seeing Wheeler "plunk" down $2000 in cold cash.

The next morning this same stock took a tumble and Mr. Wheeler was sitting for the next sum of $500. But such is life with the "hot-rich-quick" out here and as I said, "you have got to expect these things."

Mr. Wheeler was accompanied here by "Coney" Abbott, a former Wisconsin university boy, who has made a comfortable fortune in the mining business just from this furnished by his friend Wheeler.

BASKETBALL SEASON DRAWING TO A CLOSE

Only a Few More Games Will Be Played by Y. M. C. A. Teams at Gym This Spring.

As the basketball season is drawing to a close, the contests between the teams of the intermediate and Business Men's leagues are close and exciting as ever in the battling forth its best efforts to secure the championship. In the intermediate league especially the struggle is waxing warm as four of the six have a chance for first place and there are only two more games beside the one tonight, to be played.

In the Business Men's league last evening, in a match between J. L. Wilcox's team and the players of 11, H. H. Hines, Wilcox's five won from their opponents by the score of 13 to 3. The contest was fast and rough. Professor Claude B. Stout for the Wilcox quintet, by his accuracy in goal-throwing won the game, the good work of the rest of the team adding him greatly. In the second game P. C. Grant's team forfeited to S. Lovejoy's men, 2 to 0.

As the result of the entertainment given at the high school Friday evening a neat little sum was realized, which will be used in improving the equipment of the association.

NEW CITY OFFICERS TAKE CHARGE TODAY

Meeting of Council for Purpose of Organization Called for Thursday Night.

The victors in the last municipal election entered upon their official duties this morning, and Wilbur P. Carlo is now the mayor of Janesville, and Roy M. Cummings is city clerk. The terms of ex-Mayor Heddles and former City Clerk Arthur Badger ended last night at twelve o'clock, although Mr. Badger is assisting the present clerk for a short time.

A meeting of the city council for the purpose of organization has been called by Mayor Carlo for Thursday night at 7:30 and at this meeting the standing committees for the year will be named, a new member of the fire and police commission appointed to succeed John P. Sweeney, the president of the council, city engineer, health officer, street commissioner, and city hall janitor elected.

The new member of the fire and police commission will be a democrat as it is obligatory that the commission consist of three members from each party in power and the other two from the minority.

The commission as it now stands consists of W. S. Jeffers, chairman; C. C. MacLean, secretary; Geo. D. Shippson, Dr. W. L. Judd, and John P. Sweeney, whose term expired last night.

Other than the business incidental to the opening of the new administration, no proceedings of great interest are expected to come up for consideration.

The make-up of the new council will be as follows: From the first ward the aldermen will be J. W. Clark, who was re-elected, and Charles D. Evans, who was chosen to fill out former Ald. W. F. Carlo's unexpired term.

From the second ward, G. O. Buchholz, who holds over from the last council, and Jas. W. Scott, newly elected to succeed J. D. O'Hara.

From the third ward, H. W. Brown, re-elected, and Geo. Kimball, who was chosen to succeed W. Watt. The aldermen from the above wards are all republicans, which gives that party a majority of two in the council.

From the fourth ward, J. J. Sheridan holds over and W. C. Rohlfed was elected to succeed himself. From the fifth ward, G. W. Richardson holds over and J. J. Dulla, president of the last council, was re-elected.

OFFICIAL NOTICE TAKEN OF "CORNER"

Madison, Wis., April 20.—By unanimous vote the assembly today adopted a resolution taking notice of Patton's corner in wheat, condemning such speculation as placing even the bread supply of the nation at the mercy of gamblers, and demanding a national investigation and remedial legislation.

The assembly advanced the Berner, social democrat, bill to forbid the employment of women at night labor. Senator Gaylord, a social democrat, made a long speech against the state giving away any more rights to hold dams, declaring the people should own all the water-power.

DWIGHT GREENHOUSES SOLD TO AMERPOHL

Change of Ownership of Greenhouse Plant and Flower Shop in Effect Yesterday Morning.

The Dwight greenhouses on Jackson street and the Flower Shop, which have been owned and operated by Dr. C. G. Dwight of this city, have been sold by him to Edward Amerpohl. Mr. Amerpohl took possession of the property this morning. The price paid for the plant is withheld, but the estimated value of the land and buildings is $10,000. There are three plant-houses and a lean-to, and in the construction of the glass roofs thirty thousand feet of glass were used. The houses are each two hundred and sixty feet long and twenty-five feet in width and the dimensions of the lean-to are two hundred and forty by fourteen feet. The plant is sold to be the second largest in the state of Wisconsin. The reason given by Dr. Dwight for giving up the flower business is that he may better attend to his profession. The flower shop in the Jackson block will probably be continued by Mr. Amerpohl.

COMMENCE BUILDING THE NEW ADDITION

Workmen Start at Golf Club House To-Day—Dance Comes Wednesday Evening.

Workmen began their construction of the new dining porch at the Shinnepark golf club house this morning. It will be pushed along and weather permitting will be finished by May 10. The house committee, which had projected this improvement, are now most busy with their plans for the party to be held at Assembly hall tomorrow evening. Krell's orchestra of seven pieces, from Chicago, have been engaged and a regular dancing program which will last until the evening, will give a preliminary concert in the evening. To meet the demand for light refreshments the committee will serve sandwiches and coffee, at an extra cost, to those who desire them. Many who have purchased tickets will go to enjoy the music and seats will be reserved for them in the gallery. Square dances will be indulged in every third number, on the first part of the program. The committee consisting of Mrs. Holmes, chairman, Mrs. A. P. Barnham, Stanley Tallman and Albert Schaller, ask that it be understood that the party is not exclusively golf club party, but that others who may wish to attend can obtain cards from the members of the committee.

COMMERCIAL CLUB'S PLANS FOR LABORS

Plan of Employing Secretary to Do the Work of Club Talked Over at Last Evening's Meeting.

That the Commercial club recently organized to boom and boost Janesville to the fore front intend to accomplish something was evidenced last evening at the supper and discussion held afterwards at the Myers hotel. J. A. Carlo, who has been elected secretary of the club, made the statement that what the club needed was a secretary—a man who could handle the business as it should be handled; a man who was paid a good salary for this purpose with sufficient funds to run the office properly.

The question was discussed by several other speakers, the majority of whom agreed with him and it was referred to the executive committee for careful consideration. The question of insurance rates also brought out lively discussion as did the freight problem, and the members heard many excellent ideas advanced for the betterment of the city. Among those who spoke were: S. L. Carlo, Geo. G. Sutherland, J. A. Carlo, Elmer Norcross, Joseph Weber, Jr., F. L. Cummings, V. P. Richardson, P. A. Taylor, T. O. Howe, J. S. Field, and P. H. Korst. The next meeting will be held in May when committees will report. George S. Parker, president of the club, presided at the meeting.

About Circassian Walnut

With the annual migration or moving day a scant fortnight away, a short talk about Bedroom Furniture is surely apropos.

Let us turn your attention away from mahogany for a moment to present the claims of a comparatively new comer among the woods, a distinguished foreigner, to wit: Circassian Walnut, a very welcome addition to the wood family.

Beautiful in its markings, rich in its grey-brown tones, it readily lends itself and adorns all sorts of good furniture, and is especially attractive in furniture for the bedroom. Utility, too, figures strongly in this wood. Because of its color it retains its good looks longer than the darker woods, which must be kept well groomed or they soon show the marks of time and wear.

We are showing in our window a beautiful bed-room suite of Circassian Walnut copied from the designs of Louis XV. It gives an opportunity to furnish a room that will not alone be beautiful, but decidedly out of the ordinary.

When you come to see it, we will have something to tell and show in a luxurious cotton Felt Mattress at $9.00, equal in all respects to those often sold for $15.00.

PRINCIPALS IN TWENTY YEAR PEDRO BATTLE.

Manecolona, Mich.—To engage in a twenty-year Pedro battle is the unique experience of Mr. David Lazelle and Mr. J. W. Wallace of this city. Mr. Wallace, the younger of the two, was the winner of this contest which ended last week. Both men are now well along in years, being sixty-four and seventy-five respectively.

Twenty years ago both of these men were champion Pedro players. Each heard of the other's skill and for that reason each kept away from the other. Pedro playing was the craze at that time, however, and there were many who wished to see a match between these two champions. Finally the match was arranged by their wives.

Lazelle had promised his wife to challenge Wallace and Wallace had promised his wife to challenge Lazelle. Each lady being devoted to her lord and master should prove his superiority over the husband of the other. Both men were foxy, although woman's wit finally overcame their side-stepping ability. It was at a social affair that the climax came. Both men by their good playing rapidly forged ahead until both arrived at the head table at the same time. Everyone there was expecting something, and the old residents of the village say it was a momentous occasion, fully as momentous as when the governor of North Carolina met the governor of South Carolina in the old days. Everybody ceased to play in order to hear what was coming.

Lazelle looked at Wallace and Wallace looked at Lazelle.

Then the audience heard Lazelle challenge Wallace.

Then the audience heard Wallace challenge Wallace again.

"I'll play you ten straight games for the championship of Manecolona," said Wallace finally. "That was 20 years ago and then and there the contest started, not to end until last week 1909, the object being for one man to win ten games in succession.

Day after day or night after night

since then they have played, the contest finally becoming so monotonous to all but the contestants that the village ceased to watch the games. Many and many a time one of the men needed but a few games to end the series, but luck always turned. A few years ago they played all night. By a strange trick of fate each man would get eight or nine games and then luck would turn and he would lose one and although the only stop made was for a midnight supper just where it started. And so continued for two years of years until that fateful night when Wallace led trumps five times in succession, correlated a carefully guarded Pedro held by Lazelle looked at the table and reached his hand across the table.

Manhood's Supreme Test.

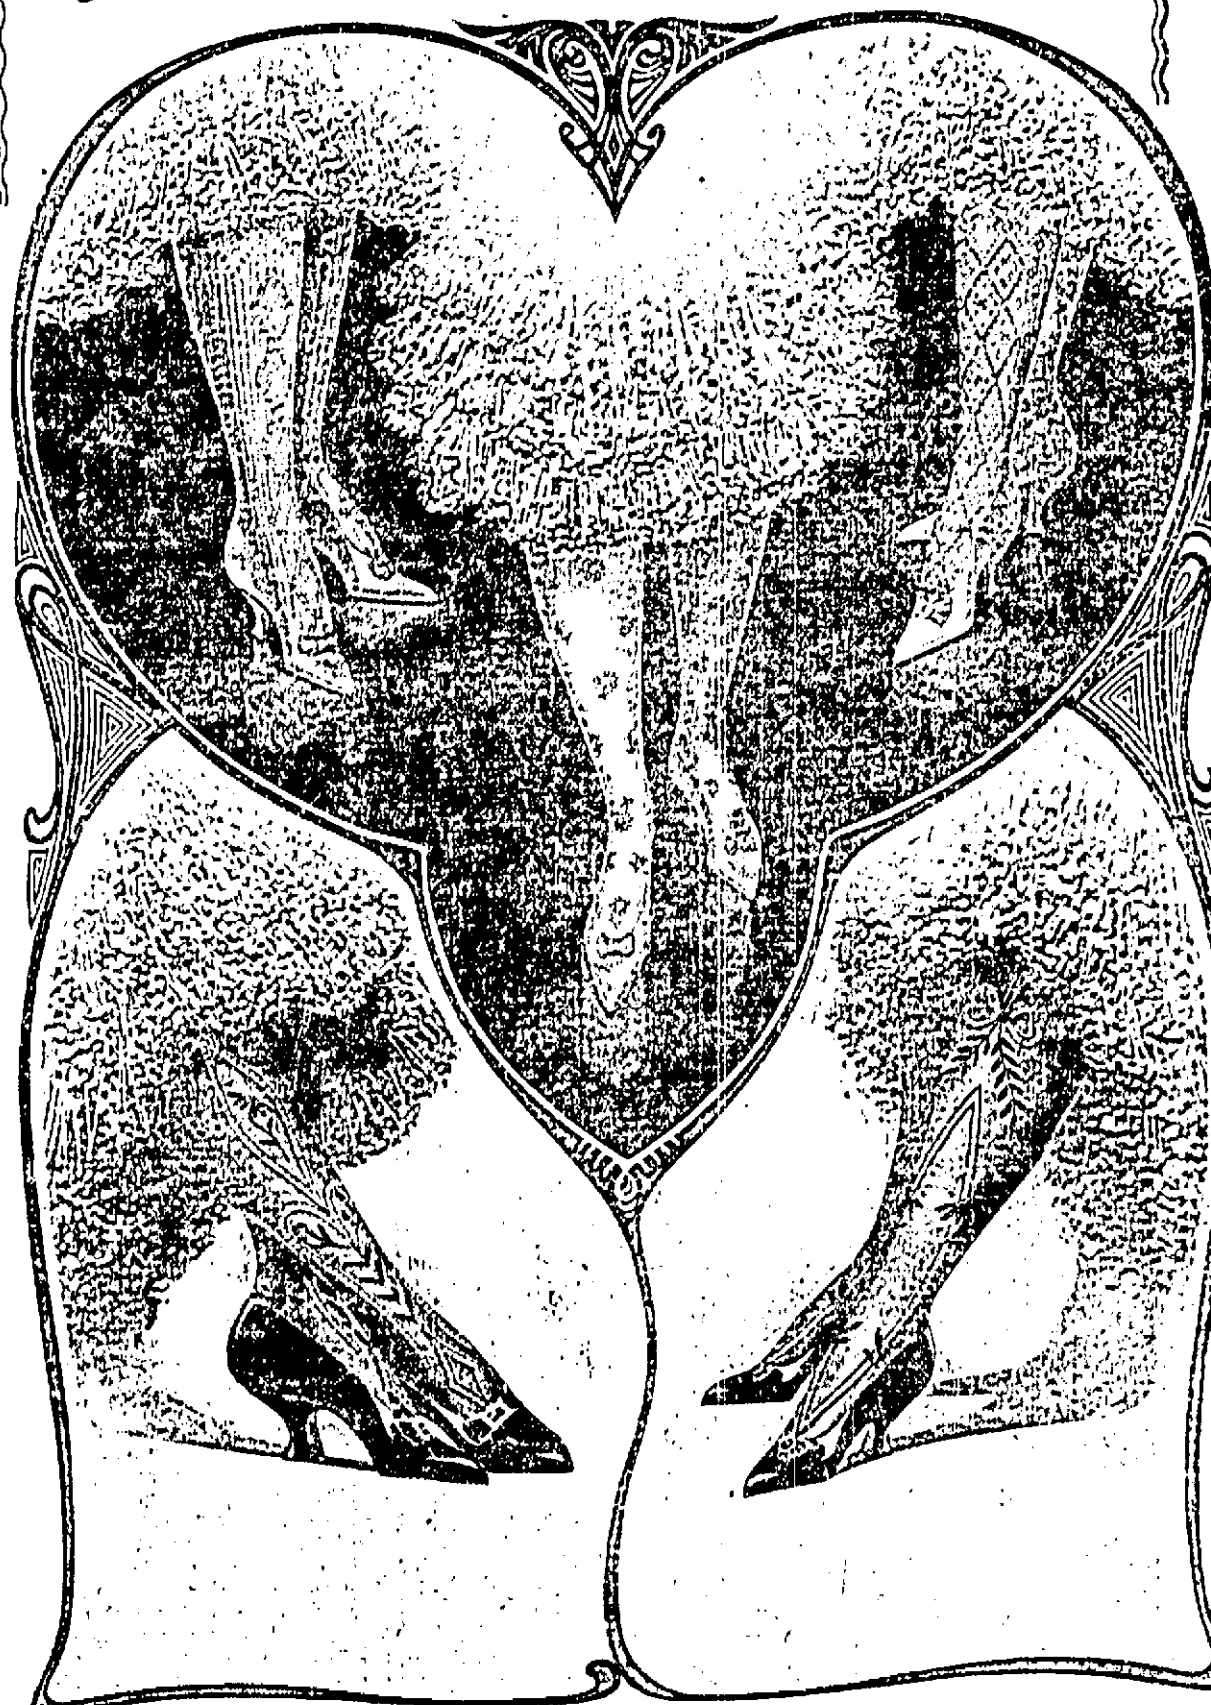

Hecher: The highest manhood resides in disposition, not in mere intellect.

Conferred on Women Only.
Noble work in the cause of humanity entitles a woman to the "Order of St. John," established in 1870 by King John of Saxony. The order was founded in memory of the Duchess St. John, great mother of the Albertine line.

And Lasts as Long.
The "greater than Washington" statesman is admirably discovered almost as frequently as the "greater than Shakespeare" playwright.

Color of Bread No Test.
The public would be well advised to abandon the fallacious notion that the whiteness of bread is a mark of its quality. The destruction of the natural color of flour by bleaching agents synchronizes with the destruction of its attractive flavor. Such tampering with the "staff of life" should be made illegal.—London Lancet.

"I had a general breakdown. A gentleman advised Dr. Miles' Nervine, and I noted an improvement after a few doses, and two bottles gave me entire relief."

W. R. BURKHEAD, 252 Rawlins St., Washington, C. D.

When the nervous system is weakened, one after another of the organs which they control become inactive, and a general breakdown eventually follows. It may be either the stomach, heart, lungs or kidneys that is first affected.

BAR LICENSES

WERE REVOKED

CITY FATHERS UNDAUNTED BY LEGAL SNARLS.

NEW REGIME HAS BEGUN

Old Officers Who Do Not Succeed
Themselves Retired at Midnight—
Soft Pedal for "Sine Die."

Tribute to Mayor Heddies.

"The old common council," I believe, has arrived at its last hour. It is customary for a new prevailing officer to deliver an inaugural address and I can't see why we shouldn't have some farewell words from one about to retire. Few men who have graced the position of having given better satisfaction than the present Mayor. His friends are the citizens of Janesville to a man.—Alderman H. W. Brown.

All the bickerings and harpoon-biting and cat-and-dogging which marked the career of the 1908-9 common council were forgotten in the little scene enacted just before the "sine die" last evening, and a stranger might easily have mistaken the colors of City Fathers for a group of judges members "adjourning" under the old seal of the city.

Mayor Stewart H. Heddies' path has seldom been lined with roses. Yet he has harbored no feeling against any man and the persistence and survival of this genial spirit of tolerance and optimism were observable in his characteristic response to Alderman Brown's suggestion:

"Gentlemen and Friends—I had thought of setting up a little farewell address but I learned that they had not been in fashion since the days of John Winnes. During that interval many illustrious Mayors have seen fit to quietly withdraw."

What the Mayor Said.
Mayor Stewart H. Heddies' path has seldom been lined with roses. Yet he has harbored no feeling against any man and the persistence and survival of this genial spirit of tolerance and optimism were observable in his characteristic response to Alderman Brown's suggestion:

"Gentlemen and Friends—I had thought of setting up a little farewell address but I learned that they had not been in fashion since the days of John Winnes. During that interval many illustrious Mayors have seen fit to quietly withdraw."

"I like the tone of the newspapers and the platform laid down for the incoming Mayor, and I bespeak for the latter a prosperous and harmonious administration. We are all interested in Janesville, whether we are in or out of office, and nothing but good can result if officials always keep the fact in mind that they are only agents of the people, and all of us remember to obey the law and do our duty. Gentlemen, I thank you."

Rising Vote of Thanks.
Tribute to the Mayor for the unprecedented manner in which he had presided over the deliberations of the council; to Arthur E. Heddies, the retiring city clerk, for his efficiency and readiness to lend assistance whenever called upon; and to Alderman O'Hara,
his colleague, was offered by Ald.
Heddies and on his motion the council extended a rising vote of thanks to all three of them.

Half-Splitting Arguments.
Prior to this there was an exposition of the fine points of legal lore
by the lawyers who appeared to argue against the revocation of Ray W. Podwell's and Mrs. Margaret Walrath's liquor licenses. Attorney George Pierce who represented Podwell took exception to City Attorney Maxwell's declaration that after all arguments
had been heard he would advise the council to refuse to pursue. "The council," he represented himself as complaining witness, should have no more prestige as an advisor before the council sitting as a court than any other advocate. Mr. Pierce also insisted that there was a vast distinction between keeping a gambling device on the premises (the charge to which Podwell pleaded guilty in municipal court) and permitting gambling to go on under one's roof. Section 1558 of the Revised Statutes of Wisconsin makes it mandatory on the council, where complaint has been filed
in due form and the facts established,
to revoke the license of a saloon-keeper
who allows gambling in his place
of business and no application here.
Otherwise a man might be driven out of business for having a pack of cards upon the shelf. Nor was the fact that Janesville had an ordinance forbidding
the harboring of such gambling devices pertinent to the case. There were ordinances regulating the disposal of ashes and garbage but no one would maintain that saloon-keeper who violated any of these should be liable to lose his permit to do business.

Held Summons Faulty.
Attorney J. J. Cunningham, who made a special appearance for Mrs.
Walrath, maintained that the case against her was not in court. He called attention to the provision of the statute which says that summons must be served not less than three nor more than 10 days after an order has been issued to show cause why a license
should not be revoked, and then called attention to the fact that the only order pertaining to this case was passed on the 25th day of April, whereas the summons commanded the defendant to appear on the 19th day of April. He also took exception to a blunder in the summons wherein it was made to appear that the license in question was issued on July 6, 1909, instead of 1908. His client, he said, went to the hospital for an operation on Sunday
and had not the city attorney broken
his implied agreement not to commence a new procedure against her until it was possible for her to appear in person, he would not have raised these technical objections.

Licenses Were Revoked.
City Attorney Maxwell held that the suspended period of 3 and 10 days
merely fixed the farthest-out limits,
beyond which a council might by its own action to mandamus procedure, and had no reference to the party summoned; also that the date of the issuance of the license was mere surplusage,
and which was not necessary to establish the validity of a summons. He would not depart from his position
that it was obligatory for the council to act in both cases and the two licenses were vacated by unanimous vote. Aldermen Brown and Heddies, however, coupling their votes with statements to the effect that they were somewhat blindly following the advice of the City Attorney that there was no alternative.

Resolution Lost.
After the officials had been approved,
Alderman George F. Kimball of the Third ward who was elected to fill the unexpired term of Ald. Watt, took his seat. A resolution introduced by Ald. O'Hara, providing that the Mayor,
or City Attorney, and Chief of Police,
should constitute a committee of three
to thoroughly investigate and report to the council on all applications for saloon licenses and that no action should be taken on any such application until at least two weeks after it had been filed, provoked a somewhat acrimonious debate between the sponsor of the measure and Chairman Heddies of the license committee, who insisted that his committee was performing these functions and subjecting all such applications to a careful scrutiny.
It came to a vote the resolution was lost by a vote of 7 to 2. Ald.
O'Hara and Ald. Kimball voting in the affirmative.

Miscellaneous Business.
City Treasurer Father's annual report for the year ending March 31 was received and placed on file. The clerk was directed to draw on the treasurer for the following amounts representing the salary balances due to retiring officers: H. D. Heddies, $10.00; Arthur E. Heddies, $5.00; and
J. D. O'Hara, $5.00. A motion of Chairman Heddies of the fire and water committee the petition of Adam Holt and Frank Carver to move a frame building at 418 West Milwaukee street 44 feet west and of James De
to erect a temporary frame structure
on North Academy street, were laid on the table, both being contrary to the ordinance sidewalk grades for City street from Cornelia to Carolina St., and Cornelia St. from Glen to Walker Street, were accepted. The street commissioner was directed to clean the gutters on Cornelia street and throughout the First ward, where necessary. Alderman Dunn was absent from the meeting.

TRUE AMERICANS AT
MYERS' OPERA HOUSE

United Spanish War Veterans Gave Fine Performance Last Night.

Last evening at the Myers theatre,
"True Americans," a play founded on the Spanish-American war, was given by the members of the local camp
of United Spanish War Veterans. The production of the play by local talent
was very good but the attendance last night was rather small. The play deals with the love of Albert Fielding,
an American soldier, for Margaret Lopez, a Spanish girl visiting in the United States. The plot of the story is woven about this love, and the outcome of it was with Spain is also brought into the play. The scene of action were laid in Mayville, Kentucky and in the island of Cuba. Every part was well taken and the show moved through from start to finish with but few hitches.
The play will be repeated tonight for the benefit of one of the members of the camp who is ill at the hospital.

BAD DREAMS.

Indicate Improper Diet, Usually Due
To Coffee.

One of the common symptoms of coffee poisoning is the bad dreams
that spoil what should be a restful sleep. A man who found the reason says:

"Formerly I was a slave to coffee. I was like a morphine fiend, could not sleep at night, would roll and toss in my bed and when I did get to sleep
was disturbed by dreams and holicoush, would wake up with headaches and feel bad all day, so nervous
I could not attend to business. My writing looked like bird tracks. I had indigestion, heartburn and palpitation of the heart, constipation,
irregularity of the kidneys, etc."

"Indeed, I began to feel I had all the troubles that human flesh could suffer, but when a friend advised me
to leave off coffee I felt as if I had inherited me. I could not bear the idea of having such a hold on me and I refused to believe it the cause."

"I finally consented to try Postum and with the going of coffee and the coming of Postum all my troubles
have gone and health has returned."

"I eat and sleep well now, nerves
strengthened and I write a fair hand (as you can see) can attend to business again and rejoice that I am free
from the monster Coffee."

Ten days trial of Postum in place
of coffee will bring sound, restful, refreshing sleep. "There's a Reason."

Look in packs for the famous Little Book, "The Reason to Wellville."

BAKERS WILL NOT LOSE

But the Consumer Will Pay for a Staff
of Life That Is Short Several Inches.

With wheat at $1.28 a bushel, flour
$1.00 a barrel above former prices,
James A. Patten, board of trade speculator and wheat king, will stand to gain between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000,
and bakers will be obliged to put a
two bit less flour in each loaf of bread
in order to break even on the rise in the price of flour, while the consumer,
who is at the bottom of the ladder
and unable to retaliate, will be compelled to accept a loaf that contains ounces in exact ratio to the increase

CORN PRODUCTS
REFINING COMPANY
New York

I see all right. When the melon's getting ripe that's the time to watch it.

"Yes," he says. "I like them young fellows well's anybody I ever see, and so does Huddy. We got to thinking of em over here in this big house and we wanted 'em to feel at home; just as if 'twas home. Now there's nothing like pictures and such on the walls to make a place homey. So Huddy and me has sent 'em these few things to hang up 'round."

He commenced to undo the bundles.
"Twas Huddy Ann's notion," he went on. "When she bought this place
at auction there was the furniture and fixings in it that belonged to Marcellus.
Some of 'em we left here, beds
and chairs and the like of that, and some we took over to our house. There was more than we needed and these is some we had in the attic."

He'd got the newspapers and strings off by this time and he spread the presents out on the floor. There was a wax wreath from old Mrs. Barry's funeral, in a round case; and a crayon enlargement of a daguerreotype of Marcellus when he was 30 or so; he had a fancy vest on and a choker and a fringed-end necktie, and looked like
he was freezing to death fast and knew
it. Likewise there was a shell work-basket in a shell frame with about a third of the shells missing; and two silver clock plates on black velvet;
and a worsted motto thing with "What is Home Without a Mother?" on it.

"There!" says Nate, happy and generous. "We'll give 'em them things, Huddy and me. Leastways they can have 'em to look at while they're here.
Have 'em strung around on the setting room walls and it kind of takes off the bare look. Gives 'em something to think about, too, don't it?"

"Yes," says I; "I should think
'twould. I wouldn't think of much else, seems to me."

"Oh," says he. "Did you eat all of them mackerel you had? If you didn't, and they're likely to spoil, why,
I'll take a couple along home with me.
Huddy's dreadful fond of mackerel."

"There ain't but one left," says I,
"and—"

"Oh, well," he says; "one'll be enough for us. We're awful small eaters."

So I trotted out the mackerel and he done it up in a piece of the newspaper and went away to his dory. I lugged in the presents and laid 'em away in the old chest of drawers in the dining room. Felt like an undertaker, too, I did, all the time I was doing it. I didn't want the Howells to see them relics till they'd ate a good breakfast—they was too much for an empty stomach. Then I looked up and took the lamp and went to my room.

After I got undressed I opened the window and leaned on the sill and thought. I thought about my new job and what I could see was coming to me in the way of work, and about Lord James and Nate and all. And then I thought of Hartley and that Pigeon girl. Martin didn't act to me like a money-grubber. I couldn't understand it. One thing I was sure of,
them two was meant for each other
and it seemed to me that they still liked each other. But there was Van Brunt. I liked him too.

Just then a thundering great green-
head bit me on the back of the neck and I slammed down the sash and turned in on my bale of cucurbits.
Tired! don't talk!

CHAPTER VIII.
Mr. Scudder's Presents.

I was up the next morning about five and pitched in making biscuit and lugging water and so on. Lord James comes poking down after a while. He looked pretty well used up. "What they got in them blooming beds-
bricks?"

"Why?" says I. "Was yours hard?"

"And? Upon me word I'm full of
'em like a grater. My back is that sore you wouldn't believe it. And
what makes 'em so noisy?"

"See 'twa, Pratt," says he. "What
they got in them blooming beds-
bricks?"

"Why?" says I. "Was yours hard?"

"And? Upon me word I'm full of
'em like a grater. My back is that
sore you wouldn't believe it. And
what makes 'em so noisy?"

"See 'twa, Pratt," says he. "What
they got in them blooming beds-
bricks?"

"Why?" says I. "Was yours hard?"

"And? Upon me word I'm full of
'em like a grater. My back is that
sore you wouldn't believe it. And
what makes 'em so noisy?"

"See 'twa, Pratt," says he. "What
they got in them blooming beds-
bricks?"

It your own way. But who's going to work this cucumber and dew farm?"

"Why, we are, of course," says Van.
"That's part of the game, isn't it, Martin? Nothing so healthful as outdoor work for caged birds like us.
Maybe we'll have two gardens, one apiece. Then we'll see who makes the first crop."

I could see 'em doing it! But there was no use arguing then. I put my trust in Scudder's not being able to fetch the loan.

Pretty soon Nate heaves in sight in the dory with a cargo of skim milk and store eggs and butter. Van Brunt and I went down to meet him. Van didn't give him a chance to talk; just as soon as the stuff was put on shore
he announces that Scudder must go right back and drive him over to Eastwich. Nate backed and filled, as usual, telling how busy he was, and how he hadn't ought to leave, and so on.
But Van corks him right up with a five-dollar bill and off they went.

I lugged the milk and butter and the rest of the truck up to the house and started in on another stretch of work.
I'd had a vacation of ten minutes or
so; now 'twas time to begin again.
After I'd cleared up round the kitchen and the like of that, I went off down to the Dora Bassett and tackled her. Van Brunt had cut away about everything
but the mast, and I had to rig new halliards and sheets and downhalls
and land knows what. That that Heavenly! 'twas a two days' job.

While I was making a start on it Hartley comes loading down from the house.

"Slipper," he says. "Let's have another one of your chowders for lunch,
will you? They're the real thing."

"Well, I tell you, Mr. Hartley," says
I, "if we have chowder I'd ought to go and dig the claims right now, on account of the tide. And, honest, I hate to leave this work I'm on. Still, of course, if you say so, why—"

"What's the matter with my digging
'em?" he says.

I grinned. "Why, nothing," I says,
"so far as I know, except that it's something of a job."

"Job!" he says. "It'll be fun. Tell me where to go—and what to dig 'em
with, and—how to do it."

I told him to take the skiff and a clam hoe and a couple of buckets and row across to the mainland. There was clams all alongshore there, I knew.

"You go along till you see a lot of little holes in the sand," I says, "then you dig. Want to look out that they ain't sand-worm holes, nor razor fish.
And when you begin to dig," I says,
"you want to lay right into it, 'cause
the clams are likely to be 'run-downs'
and they get under fast. So—"

"Hold on a minute," says he. "How am I going to tell a worm-hole from a clam-hole, or a clam-hole from a—what was it?—barber fish hole?"

"Razor fish," says I. "Not barber.
Well, I don't know how to tell you, exactly. If it's a sand-hole there's likely to be a little tiny hole alongside the regular one; that is, there is sometimes and sometimes there ain't. And it's a razor fish—well, I can tell 'em,
but I calculate you'll have to use your own judgment."

He said all right, he guessed he'd get along. So off he went, and pretty soon him and Lord James comes down and gets aboard the skiff. His lordship was loaded with no less than four buckets, besides a clam hoe and the garden hoe and the stove shovel. 'Twas
the most imposing clam hunt outfit ever I see. If I'd been a clam and seen that battery coming my way I'd have took to tail timber.

"Sure you've got hoes and buckets
enough?" I asks, sarcastic.

"I guess so," says he, looking around at the weapons. "We might need another poll, perhaps, but if we do I'll send James after it."

JANESVILLE WOMEN ARE FINDING RELIEF AT LAST

It does seem that women have more than a fair share of the aches and pains that afflict humanity; they must "keep up," must attend to duties in spite of constantly aching backs, or headaches, dizzy spells, bearing-down pains; they must stoop over, when to stoop means torture. They must walk and bend and work with racking pains
and many aches from kidney illness. Kidneys cause more suffering than any other organ of the body. Keep the kidneys well and health is easily maintained. Read of a remedy for kidneys only that helps and cures the kidneys and is endorsed by people you know.

Mrs. Elizabeth Curtis, living at 108
N. Third St., Janesville, Wis., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills at different times for several years passed
whenever my kidneys needed a tonic
and have always received the best of results. My system was filled with uric acid, poison and other symptoms
showed a disordered condition of my kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills rid me of this trouble and since then other members of my family have taken them with equally good results. I do not hesitate to say that I consider Doan's Kidney Pills one of the best kidney remedies on the market today."

Not All Silk Gloves Are Kayzers

Kaysers are now—as for 25 years—
the silk gloves that all women want.

But there are other silk gloves—
vastly inferior—which trade on the Kayser fame.

Not like the Kaysers in finish or fit.
Not like the Kaysers in fabric or wear.
But just like the Kaysers in price.

Patent
The Kayser
Finger-Tipped
Silk Gloves

These are times to be careful. If you want the Kayser, refuse a glove without "Kayser" in the hem.

Kayser gloves are the result of 25 years of experience. They are made in our factory, from the raw silk up. They go through fifty operations to attain perfection in finish and fit.

They have our patent tips, and a guarantee in every pair.
Yet the poorest gloves cost no less.
